Dear Mr. Powell:

I have steadily watched the quality and diversity of content as well as the $\,$ treatment of workers in the broadcast business steadily decline over the $\,$ years. Sure we have more channels. But they're controlled by a handful of entities. Giving large companies more reach will, in the end, not benefit the American people or our proud, but deteriorating culture. Please, search your soul. How can the common man or small independent company ever hope to $% \left(1\right) =\left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left(1\right) +\left(1\right) \left(1\right)$ compete with the giants.

The media giants don't need you on their side. The American people do. Please, think of $% \left(1\right) =\left(1\right) +\left(1\right) +\left($ your legacy. Resist the power and temptation of these lobbies and prevent the lifting of this ban.

Sincerly,

Marc Eisenberg
